Newly built two-story family house with a garden on a quiet street in a village on the eastern outskirts of Prague offering comfortable accommodation combining the advantages of rural and urban living. The street is part of a new residential neighborhood that has been continuously linked to the original development.

The ground floor offers a southwest-facing living room that opens to the garden. The room has preparation for a partially separated kitchen area. At this level, there is a guest room, a bathroom, an entrance hall, a staircase and a utility room that connects to the garage and has direct access to the garden. The attic consists of a master bedroom with a walk-in wardrobe that leads to a spacious bathroom. Thanks to plenty of daylight, the closet can also be used as a study. There are also 2 bedrooms and a separate toilet.

Floors on the ground floor are wooden, laminate flooring upstairs. The bathroom and hall have tile flooring. The windows are plastic with double glazing. Doors and stairs are made of solid wood. The living room has a fireplace, wall stucco rails and a ceiling rosette decoration. Upstairs in the bathroom, there is a massage bath and preparation for a shower (other sanitary equipment not yet there). Heating and hot water are provided via a BAXI gas boiler. The upstairs bedrooms have skylights and sufficient heights even under the sloping ceiling. The flat plot of land is square-shaped.

Situated by the D8 motorway, Líbeznice is well placed for commuting to Prague; the Letňany metro station (line C) is 12 minutes away by car. Directly in Líbeznice, there is a kindergarten and elementary school. There is a bus stop within walking distance. In the vicinity there is a cycling path and several restaurants, as well as in the nearby Březiněves district of Prague, where there is also a swimming pool. The Bořanovický forest and Beckov (w/ a view of the town) attract visitors.
