With three floors and a landing, this generously apportioned house on Gloucester Walk in Kensington boasts both a garden and a terrace.

Beautifully located between Holland Park and Kensington Gardens, the lower ground floor of the house features a bright, open space kitchen with a breakfast area and a large dining room with interior arches and access to the garden. The main living room and a guest bedroom are on the raised ground floor, and the remaining bedrooms are nestled in the upper levels. The master suite includes a private balcony and an en suite bathroom with two sinks and a bathtub. The terrace is located next to the two bedrooms on the topmost floor.

With decorative plaster mouldings, polished plank hardwood flooring, wooden stairs, wall-to-wall carpets and decorative wallpaper in some of the bedrooms, French windows, and a bathroom with mosaic tiles. The upper terrace has space for an outside dining table and a grill.

With an enviable address, the house is close to the high-end shops and restaurants on Kensington High Street, a Tube station, and the royal residents in Kensington Palace.

Interior: 266.49 sq. m. The property is being sold by Strutt & Parker.
