This notable residence with 80 acres of protected land is one of just 4 exclusive Lower Waverly estates in Pawleys Island in South Carolina. Majestically set on the banks of the Waccamaw River, elegantly hidden behind a wrought-iron gate, and accessed via a 300-year-old oak-lined drive, it provides perfect peace and privacy.

The interior showcases impeccable design and craftsmanship, and is decorated with walnut, cherry, mahogany, hickory, and poplar paneling, beautifully blended with stained lead glass and brass and crystal chandeliers. Other luxury features include antique English tiles and an Italian balustrade. A grand home cinema inspired by the 1920s combines a historical sensibility with the latest technology. The sophisticated kitchen is equipped with custom cherry cabinets. Two sumptuous suites boast beautiful views of the grounds. The master suite on the main floor includes a large bathroom and a sitting room. Views of the pristine nature surrounding the Waccamaw River can be enjoyed from both terraces. This opulent estate was inspired by an 1851 Natchez, Mississippi plantation. Its attention to detail will pleasantly surprise even the most discerning house-hunter.

Land: 5.4 acres. The property listing by Lachicotte, agent Nancy Siau, Christy Whitlock.
